YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO THINK CLEARLY THE GREATEST DEMAND OF AMERICAN BUSINESS

Bankers Association President Gives the Five Essentials of Sound Thinking in Business—Greater Opportunity Than Ever Before for Young People With Educational Training and Power to Analyze Problems.

By CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD
President American Bankers Association

ONLY half a century ago Michael Pupin, a shepherd boy, guarded his flocks by night among the fields of Serbia. Thieves often lurked in the bordering cornfields awaiting an opportunity to make off with a part of the herd. Serbian boys were taught a method of signalling one another for warning and help. Each carried a knife with a long wooden handle which he would thrust deep into the ground and in case cattle thieves approached he would strike the wooden handle. The sound would be transmitted through the ground to other boys some distance away who could hear and interpret the message.

CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD

"Why is it," Pupin asked his mother, "that we can signal this way? Why is it the sound can be heard through the ground, but not through the air? Why is it the signals can be heard in the pasture land so much better than in the plowed fields?" The boy's mother could not answer his questions, nor could the village teacher. However, having an eager mind and great determination, the boy decided to go to America, where he might win an education and find out the answers to these and other perplexing questions. Hundreds of other boys under the same circumstances and with the same set of conditions merely accepted these things without once questioning them just because they had always done them that way.

The Land of Education and Success

So a penniless immigrant boy from Serbia at the age of fifteen landed in New York in 1874 and, years later, having worked his way through Columbia University, concentrated the wonder and simplicity of his mind upon the problem of sound, which had puzzled him as a shepherd boy. The results of his thinking—what he has accomplished for the long distance telephone and for radio communication by his inventions—are known the world over. "If during the past twenty-two years this company had been compelled to do without one invention of Michael Pupin," an official of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company once said, "and yet give the same service it is giving today it would have had to spend at least $100,000,000 more than it has expended."

These inventions, in which millions of dollars of capital have been invested, were the result of the thinking of a mere country lad who had the simplicity to wonder, the determination to know and the power to apply what he learned.

Stimulating the imagination and thinking is the greatest purpose of education. What American business needs more than anything else is young men and women to think—individuals who are not mentally anchored to tradition, who do not merely appropriate other people's ideas, but who are hard, purposeful thinkers, independent and unprejudiced, with the ability to concentrate and strike straight for the heart of a problem.

Business Needs Fair Who Think

America has astounded the world by its readiness in casting aside traditional viewpoints, disregarding traditional difficulties and pioneering new shortcut formulas in the realm of business. Business is undergoing epochal changes.

Business problems are crowding in upon us so rapidly that the executive knows not where to look for adequate help or relief. With the enormous increase in size and intricacy of business affairs the problems have become so complicated and the mass of information necessary to their solution so great that the "days are not long enough." The demand for managerial and executive ability is rushing ahead —the opportunity for young men and women who have the professional training and who develop genuine thinking power is greater than ever.

All business feels the same crying need for the men who see clearly and think conclusively. Wherever we look —manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, banking, financing—new forces are at work. Vast movements are under way and executives are seeking light upon perplexing problems daily.

Let us consider briefly the five essentials of a sound thinker. If I were looking for a young man of exception al promise I should hope, first, to find in him the simplicity to wonder. Every great advancement in business has been made by men who dared to wonder, who had the courage to inquire into present procedure and who had the audacity to ask whether something that had been done a certain way for a long time might not be wrong. Although the history of America's progress from its very discovery to the present time has shown the value of an inquiring mind, there is still an inevitable tendency in most men to accept in a docile manner the opinions, methods, theories, facts, procedures and processes of the past. With due reverence to the effort, the spirit, the accomplishments of the past, let us make it our rule that everything be looked at with the clear questioning mind of the scientist.

Business Requires an Open Mind

Second, among the essentials for sound thinking I would write down an open mind. We have mentioned freeing our minds from the influence of tradition. Let us think also without prejudices of personal feelings, desires or consequence. Let us seek only the truth. Mere surface reasoning must be discounted. Old "can'ts" and "don'ts" must be thrown into the discard. A man who has an open mind will do a great many things because he doesn't know they can't be done.

The third essential to sound thinking is knowledge—a thorough, comprehensive understanding of all the factors involved in a problem. It has been said that most problems answer themselves when the facts have been gathered. A well known student and teacher of business describes the method of attacking a problem as tearing it down, reassembling the problem and drawing the conclusion. There can be nothing but guess work or intuition unless the unknown quantities are discovered.

As a fourth essential sound thinking requires the capacity to generalize. How often we have seen men wrestling and confused before a mass of details which they were utterly unable to classify and crystallize. We have the problem of sorting out the relevant, attaining a perspective and reaching a conclusion that can be defended against any attack. To certain minds this procedure comes naturally; to others training in the solution of complicated problems points the way out.

The Time for Action

Fifth among the essentials of sound thinking is the power to apply. A few individuals have minds that travel at random or in circles. Some have minds that even refuse to budge. But there are still others who naturally or through training have minds that can be directed straight through to the practical application of their thoughts. They refuse to compromise or to be thwarted in purpose before definite application of their ideas has been achieved.

It is possible, I believe, for young people to train themselves to an inquisitive attitude, an open mind and the ability to classify and interpret material step by step from the beginning of a problem to its final solution and application. Here, then, is the thought I would leave—the paramount need of business is sound thinking. Some may think I have overstated the case, have set too high a standard. They may feel that they are merely cogs in a machine. That, too, is a part of the problem. The only way to solve that is to find time and place in the day's work for thinking.

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKING MOVEMENT REACHES IMPRESSIVE PROPORTIONS

Almost 14,000 of America's schools now have school savings banking plans in operation, and about four million pupils are learning systematic savings through this type of thrift, with deposits in excess of $28,000,000, recent reports of the American Bankers Association's Savings Bank Division show. The schools included in the report were attended by 4,669,825 pupils, of whom 3,559,237 are participants in the school savings banking plans as depositors. During the year these pupils received interest in the amount of $947,410 on their deposits.

The reports gathered by the association also show that there are 38 cities in the United States in which a full 100 per cent of the grammar school enrollment is participating in school savings banking. The figures covering high schools show that in 4 cities 100 per cent of the attendance in this class are school savers

Workin' in the Yard

There's nothin' that pays you a finer reward
Than work that you do in improvin' the yard!
The beauty that follows, I'm here to contend,
Rewards you full measure for all that you spend.

And oh, but it's fun, in your blue denim shirt
And an old pair of pants, to get down in the dirt
And bury your hands in the bountiful soil—
I tell you I know of no pleasanter toil!

But I am not thinkin' of truck that you grow
In veg'table gardens, I'd have you to know!
I'm glad to let others plant lettuce and peas
(And also the carrots and squash, if you please!)
I'm thinkin' of jonquils, the dahlias and phlox
And gay little creepers that border the walks—
I'm thinking of roses, of pansies, and all
The flowers that bloom in the summer and fall!

While some prefer fishin' to idle the time,
And some think that golf is a pleasure sublime,
And some think a ball game the finest of fun,
When all of their workaday labors are done,
I'd rather be spendin' my duty-free hours
While whistlin' and hummin', in raisin' the flowers!

Tires for the new Fo are specially made
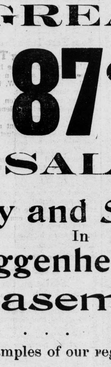
to give long wear



WHEN the new Ford was designed, it was immediately apparent that a new tire would have to be made to match the car's performance. It was distinctly a new problem, for here was a car with quicker acceleration, greater speed and more braking efficiency than any car of similar size or weight.

So that every Ford owner might be assured of maximum tire mileage at the lowest cost, the Ford Motor Company devoted many months to research and experiment in conjunction with the leading tire manufacturers.

As a result, certain definite specifications were developed for tires for the new Ford. These specify cords of certain strength and texture, a large volume of tread and side-wall rubber, sturdy non-skid design, and reinforced plies for protection against bruise breaks—all the strong features of construction found considered for only the largest tires.

Great care also was taken to secure the best riding qualities in connection with the transverse springs and the Houdaille shock absorbers.

Though the Ford tire is designated as 30 x 4.50 inches, they have the resilient balloon type of small tires because of the greater size of the wheels.

For best results, tires on the new Ford should be kept inflated to an air pressure of 35 pounds. Deflation breaks down the walls of a tire. By overheating, it also causes the rubber that separates insulation, with consequent separation of the cords.

At the end of each 5,000 miles, when you have the front wheels packed with grease, it is a good plan to have the wheel alignment checked. This will prevent unnecessary tire wear.

When punctures occur they will with any of the Ford tires be of particularly well-defined type to make repairs quick and inexpensive. Ford parts, especially for replacements, are so standardized that you will be sure of getting tires built specially for the Ford car and to definite specifications.

Mr. Coolidge will be able to keep away the wolf at the rate of $1 per word for what he writes.

Dave Hill's querry as to who is a Democrat is answered by the new Attorney General. A man who votes Exclusively the Republican Presidential ticket.

Mr. Hoover was invited to take his seat in the White House by Virginians. Now it behooves all Virginians to wish the President good luck. Our opinion is that he will faithfully discharge the great trust.

The Hon. Berkley Adams, of Charlotte County, has not definitely decided to be a candidate for Governor. It may be a three-cornered fight like the last one Dr. Pollard encountered.

Dr. Pollard Announces His Candidacy

Dr. John Garland Pollard, dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Citizenship and Government at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, has announced that he will be a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor in the August primary.

Dr. Pollard thus becomes the second candidate definitely announce for the race, Lieutenant Governor being Junius E. West of Suffolk.

Dr. Pollard's announcement, given the Daily Press says:

"I am a candidate for the governorship of Virginia subject to the coming democratic primary.

"I shall shortly resign my position as dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Government and Citizenship of the College of William and Mary and announce my platform.

"All I have to say at this time is that I greatly rejoice in the wonderful progress Virginia has recently made in inducing new industries to establish themselves within our borders. This means increased employment for our people and improved markets for our manufactured and agricultural products. It also means increased taxable values and a consequent ability to build up better schools, better roads and better public health and welfare service without increasing the burden of taxation. The coming of new industries is largely affected by the police of our government and the attitude of its chief executive. If I am elected, Virginia's hospitality towards new enterprises will continue.

"When the next general assembly convenes there will be a large surplus in the treasury. The existence of such a surplus, while gratifying in the extreme, is fraught with danger. It will bring from many sources strong and insistent demands for increased expenditures and there will be a strong temptation towards extravagance If elected I shall, notwithstanding the surplus, seek to find new methods of saving rather than new methods of spending—to the end that rate of taxation may be decreased. I am, however, deeply interested in giving the children of Virginia residing in the less wealthy sections an equal opportunity for an education.

"I hope the discussion of the issues of this campaign will be friendly, dignified and helpful and I shall not knowingly be a party to the injection of any bitterness. I see no reason why those who have heretofore differed on political questions should not forget irrelevant issues of the past and work together in harmony for the best interests of Virginia.

"I want to assure the people that if I should become their chief executive every official act of mine, including appointments to office, will be with an eye single to the public welfare.

"My forthcoming platform will set forth my views more in detail."

Legumes Are Soil Builders and Necessary To Balanced Farming

R. B. Hudgins, Co. Agent

Legumes are by far the most valuable crops our farmers in Appomattox can raise in their balance farming program-alfalfa, sweet clover, alsike, red clover, lespedeza, cow peas and soy beans. Of these, sweet clover is one of the best if not the best soil builder. In most cases sweet clover where there is a good stand for two years will double the yield on any crop. It is rather exacting in its requirements on land where it has not been grown.

On our lands in this county it is necessary to sow not less than two tons lime, ground rock or marle, preferably six months or a year preceding the sowing of the seed. Next important requirement is to inoculate the seed, and sow unhulled 15 to 20 lbs. per acre with 4 or 5 lbs. of alsike. Sow in February or early March.

Legumes do these for the farmer:

1 Return fertility to the soil, often increasing the yield 5 to 10 bushels per acre on crops to follow.

2 Supply humus, which retains moisture.

3 Supply protein for a balance live stock ration.

4 Give a succulent, juicy, green pasture when the grass is dried up.

A low yield of wheat spells failure. A high yield success. So it is with corn, oats and other crops. It is the extra bushels from each acre that steps up the profit. The cost of seed and labor are about the same.

The legumes, particularly sweet clover and alfalfa, gives you this extra yield. They do it because they manufacture nitrogen out of the air and return it to the soil, for the crop to be raised on the same land in succeeding years.

Then they supply humus, decayed vegetable matter, which has the property of holding water, making it available for growing crops. When your soil has an ample supply of humus your crops have moisture when the soil without humus is very dry.

Legumes also balance the live stock ration. They are rich in protein. That means that hogs will grow faster, cattle fatten quicker, and cows give more milk. All of which means more profit.

Sweet clover will pasture more live stock per acre than almost any other crop. It will graze an average of two head of cattle per acre, throughout the pasture season. Will pasture 20 to 30 hogs per acre. It will stay green and succulent when all other pastures are dried up. Finally legumes supply the best hay you can raise. This is particularly true of alfalfa.

Still another advantage which comes with the seeding of small grain to sweet clover is that soil filled with decaying roots can be more quickly prepared for a crop and with less power.

A further advantage of sweet clover is the seed being so easily saved and threshed at home. One or two acres cut with a binder when the seed is about one-half ripe, shocked as you would wheat without any caps, using the summer thrash or beat them out on a wagon sheet. You will not only have enough seed for your own farm but some to sell.

Mr. Allen O'Brien two years ago threshed out 13 bushels from about 5 acres, and now he has growing in sweet clover around 40 acres and expects to thresh about ten acres this year.

Mr. J. O. Davidson cut several acres of sweet clover with binder two years ago and beat out ten bushels by hand, this gave Mr. Davidson not only seed for his home use but sold several bushels at the regular market price.

Those of you having sweet clover seeding out this year and wish to save the seed I will be glad to assist you in cutting and threshing.

Disappointed

MR. EDITOR:

There must be some disappointment in Dixie, owing to the fact that Mr. Hoover didn't include a Southerner in his cabinet. Independents, Hoovercrats, Republicans and Democrats expected at least one of the portfolios to go to a Southerner. Another disappointment was the appointment of a lawyer to head the great department of agriculture

CARRIES UMBRELLA ON WORLD JOURNEYS

Congressman Keeps Same Rain Stick 45 Years.

Washington.—Over the flats of Singapore and across the sands of the Sahara, up the valley of the Ganges and over the peaks about St. Moritz, by boat down the River of Doubt and by sleigh through the waist-deep snows of the Siberian steppes—almost anywhere, in fact, except the Polar regions, a faithful umbrella has traveled with its owner. It has been mended and repaired, of course, but it still has the same stanch stick and the same heavy silk covering, though it has been around the globe more than a score of times and has gone into nearly every country.

Congressman Ernest R. Ackerman of New Jersey, the Republican roll-call bellwether of the lower branch of congress, is the owner of the umbrella. No matter where you see Mr. Ackerman, if he has his hat on, you see the umbrella. And when it is not with him it is in a specially built rack in his office or his home, with his hat always upon it, so the one cannot be remembered without the other.

Purchased 45 Years ago.

Forty-five years ago the umbrella came into Mr. Ackerman's possession by purchase. Mr. Ackerman, who is one of the cement millionaires of the country, bought the umbrella at Bond's, in Piccadilly, London. A close friend was with him at the time and bought one like it. Immediately afterward the friend bet Mr. Ackerman he would have his umbrella sooner. He lost his two weeks afterward. Mr. Ackerman has carried his ever since, and last year it made its fiftieth trip abroad.

Scores of trips to Europe, Asia, Africa and South America—a different place each year—have added to the umbrella mileage. The umbrella was still good and strong enough to make a visit with the Ackermans this year to Italy and the Adriatic.

The handle has been carved, by the Ackerman hand, with notations as to where and when the umbrella has been when important world events have occurred under the Ackerman eye. There are little silver plates, too, noting the dates of special trips the umbrella has made.

Has Another Fad.

The umbrella fad is not the only one in which Mr. Ackerman engages. He is a postage stamp collector, one of the most assiduous in the world. Of course, one hears that King George of England and King Victor Emmanuel of Italy are the greatest, but Mr. Ackerman will tell you this is not so, as the Ackerman collection in the line of their own realms only. The New Jersey congressman makes his collections general.

Recently Mr. Ackerman has added to his collection, at much expense, a complete set of the pre-revolutionary stamps. These issues are very rare.

Stamp collecting has long been a fancy of famous men, but Mr. Ackerman has made the effort a part of cooperative venture, which has led him into many associations. He thinks nothing when in London or Rome of acquainting the palaces and their expanse of his presence. There has been much swapping of stamps with King George in return for an exact British empire stamp of which the king had duplicates.

Mr. Ackerman has another hobby, too. One of his relatives who died several years ago left him a set of letters, including one by each of the Presidents of the United States. Mr. Ackerman had the set handsomely bound and then decided to do a little collecting of letters himself. His efforts have been fruitful and his assortment of autographs and documents is highly prized.

Loss of 700 Reindeer Blow to Lapland Tribe

Oslo.—A certain tribe of nomadic Lapps engaged in raising reindeer has been hit by misfortune this winter. During the summer the Lapps' large herd grazed on pastures on an Arctic island half a mile off the Norwegian mainland, and when cold weather came on the deer were led to swim across the strait. When they were half way over a passing steamer caused a panic among the animals and 150 drowned. Once ashore with the remainder, the Lapps embarked on the arduous trek through the Finmarken region to make their winter quarters at Kautokaino. Gales and snows and various mishaps dealt ravaging blows to the herd, and when finally at Kautokaino the Lapps counted a total loss of 700 reindeer.

Cost Living to Go Higher for Chinese

Shanghai, China. — Adoption of China's new tariff schedule has been seen by both Chinese and foreigners in China as the signal for the beginning of an era of sharply increased general living costs. Individual consumption is sharply affected because of the wide range of products included in the new schedule. The principal ones are clothpiece goods, leather, foodstuffs, metals, drugs, lumber, tobacco and motor cars.
